Foreword

We all are given a part to play at Eron. Some of us perform beautifully, giving everything we have. It does not come easily. A great deal of sweat and toil oils the gateway to success. Unfortunately we do not all make the grade. Some fall by the wayside, keenly disappointed, but a courageous performer will not be discouraged by failure for long. We keep striving at Eron until our goal is reached and we finally attain the stardom we have dreamed about. After the show is over and the applause has died down, we feel grateful and content that fame and fortune have touched us with her wand. No performance is so good that it cannot constantly be imroved upon and it is up to us to give the best of ourselves no matter how big or small a part we have to play. For it has been stated by the English sage, John Milton, "They also serve who only stand and wait." Eventually, with honesty, hard work and perseverance, we will reach the acclaim and admiration of the audience and our names will always be remembered. It is not just the popularity that we hope and wish for; it is a satisfaction to know that we have left a definite impression on the sands of time guided always by the Divine Architect, the giver of all good.

Dedication

The Eronian of 1961 is dedicated to you, Mrs. Hannah Boylan, a leading member of our cast at Eron. We will always remember the warmth and kindness you faithfully gave to everyone. We will never forget the sincere smile and earnest advice which we gratefully accepted and used as inspiration in the roles we played in developing our educational and cultural background.

As the curtain falls and the school year 1961 draws to an end, we will recall the cherished memories of the past. In reminiscing about the days gone by, we will remember you forever – beloved and admired Mrs. Boylan.

MR. GEORGE F. TOLK

I want to extend to you, the class of 1961, my sincere congratulations. To each of you as individual personalities, whose problems have become our problems, whose difficulties and worries have gone home with us at night, whose successes we have rejoiced with, our offering has been more than good wishes. A small part of ourselves will go with you when farewells are said.

It is only after you have graduated, that you will understand the true value of education. This is not a value which can be measused by an "A," "B," or a "C," but a far worthier value. It is the value placed on the usefulness of all that you have learned and experienced throughout your high school career.

A high school diploma is a very important possession today, but a diploma in itself is only a piece of paper. Obviously it is only important as a symbol of the knowledge and experience which its owner acquired.

Now, as you, the senior class of 1961 are about to graduate, there are more opportunities than ever to make use of that for which your diploma stands.

In this very progressive age when the conquering of space is almost upon us, there will be new horizons and new worlds to challenge your abilities. Accept the challenge, acquire the abilities, live up to and realize the promise you have already shown to us.

MR. LLOYD M. TOLK
Principal

Best of luck.
Mr Tolk

Dear Seniors:

During your stay with us, we have endeavored to instill in you values that you will carry with you as you set out to make your mark in life. The faculty and administration have with great pride observed your growth – physical, mental, and spiritual – and it is not without a little nostalgia that we bid fond adieu to the young ladies and gentlemen that have become such an integral part of Eron.

Within the ensuing years we shall hear of your worthy pursuits and your eventual successes. We hope that the self-discipline you have acquired under our tutelage will remain with you always to aid you in the hardships you will undoubtedly encounter as you climb the ladder to obtain your ambition.

You are the leaders of tomorrow—the family heads, civic directors, healers, teachers, artists —the men and women who hold the progress of our country in your hands. We wish you fulfillment in all you undertake, and trust that as we shall not soon forget you, you will remember Eron as having been a guiding light in the realization of your aspirations.

LITERATURE

Reflections

BY ISABEL GORDON

Wild are the roses that grow along the shore,
Lightly does the dew from the sky fall
And as the sun shines, the dew on the roses and also the sun
Make the roses look transparent and I full of joy.
And yet the roses have a halo around them,
What does this mean?
It can only mean one thing:
That the one Almighty up in heaven
Smiles through the good and bad of this world
And transplants this halo
To show the people in the world
Both good and bad.
That the one who ascended into heaven,
In posterity has not forgotten us,
And helps us still to be good and not to be bad,
By putting this halo around something we love,
And unconsciously solace our troubled souls
And give us peace.

Just Two In The World

BY MARTHA E. ROSENBERG

We wouldn't enjoy the sunshine
If we never had the rain,
We wouldn't appreciate good health
If we never had a pain;
If we never shed a teardrop
And always wore a smile,
We'd all get tired of laughing
After we had grinned awhile;
Everything is by comparison,
Both the bitter and the sweet,
And it takes a bit of both of them
To make our lives complete.

Unforgettable Smile

BY DEDE HURWOOD

To this day whenever I see a litter of new-born kittens, a warm feeling rushes over me, bringing me back to the age of eight and my own kittens. As a child I loved animals very much. My secret ambition was to own a pony, but I was realistic enough to know that this dream was impossible. I was even perfectly willing to settle for a dog, at worst, a cat. But mother was firm in her determination. I can still hear her say, "Don't bring any animals into this house!" At various times, you see, I had brought a stray cat or dog home to feed.

One day, standing in front of my house, I felt a cat purring against my leg. It was a large white angora cat, the most gorgeous thing I'd ever seen. I forgot my mother's warning. My only thought at that moment was to own this precious animal. I took her up to my attic, found an old box, lined it with some old cloths, brough her a bowl of milk and made her comfortable. She finished her milk, purred contentedly and went to sleep.

When I walked into the dining-room that night, I saw my mother's trusting face and became overwhelmed with guilt. I decided then and there to get rid of the cat the next morning. I finished my supper and dashed upstairs to see my beautiful animal.

As I walked into the attic, I got the surprise of my life. In addition to the cat I had left, there were now five kittens. At first I was delighted. Then I imagined I heard mother's voice, "No animals in this house!"

What a predicament I was in! I certainly could not put five helpless, little white kittens out in the street. On the other hand I was frightened of what my mother would say if she found out. All this was going through my mind.

Engrossed in thought, I didn't hear the footsteps on the attic stairs. Yet, somehow I had a feeling I had been watched. As I turned around cold with fright, I saw my mother standing in the doorway. Her eyes twinkled. A warm smile lighted her face—a smile I'll never forget.

Puzzled

BY GAIL BROSK

Why did it happen? I do not know, paths do wind that unknown way.
There is no answer, we will have to wait.
Time will tell that dreary fate.
We search our souls to find the answer. Where it is
I do not know.
To hold us back from our goal, we mustn't give up—
onward we go.
Sadness will pass, but still the memory lingers forever
in our heart.
Mistakes will happen, troubles begin, our life is hopeless,
oh! for a new start.
A new beginning, a chance, once more never too late.
Peace at last has come to us, enveloping sorrow that prevailed in the past.
I knew it would happen, it had to come, the answer,
has come at long last.
